

DSA president creates constitution for residence

By Jeff Brinkley

The time and historical spirit may not be as much as in the 1960s when the Davis Student Association (DSA) first created the residence hall constitution, but the spirit is still alive.

Planning was aided by the anniversary of the founding of the hall. The hall was built in 1963 and the hall was dedicated in 1964.

"We got the request on Thursday and they wanted the whole thing by the next Wednesday."

"I was inspired a little bit at the start of the year. It was a process of a year and the result was the first year plan," David Pearson said.

The DSA and the residence hall staff have been working on the hall's constitution for a year.

They began by having a series of meetings. "We had it on Wednesday, but they didn't have time to do it," Pearson said.

Residence needs more candidates for upcoming executive election

Looking for someone to run things as easily as any people participate in it.

It was before the DSA first held an election to be held Nov. 18 in the residence hall. The hall was built in 1963 and the hall was dedicated in 1964.

David Pearson, the DSA president, said that the hall needs more candidates for the upcoming executive election.

Student business goes on Duluth — Some think of the fall as a season of hibernation, but for many students, it's a time of activity and growth.

Computers — with its advent of networking, electronic databases and Internet — has become a major force in the business world. It's a time to get together and share ideas.

COVER LETTERS

A Cover Letter is an introductory letter that accompanies your resume. The purpose is to introduce you to a potential employer and to interest the employer in your resume.

Most job openings request a considerable number of letters accompanying your resume.

However, few spend anywhere near the amount of time needed to prepare a cover letter. We all know how important the first impression you make is.

It is strongly recommended that a Cover Letter be sent with every resume.

when applying for a job. An effective Cover Letter should identify

WHY YOU ARE WRITING Make reference to a newspaper advertisement, how you heard of the opening, or what type of work you are seeking.

WHAT YOU HAVE TO OFFER Highlight skills, accomplishments, work experience and activities which would make you an asset to the company. Be specific about qualifications, skills and training. It is important that you relate your talents to what the employer might be looking for.

Finally, REQUEST AN INTERVIEW Indicate you will call to arrange a suitable time. If you do not receive a response after two weeks, telephone the employer requesting your status as a potential employee with their organization. The Cover Letter should be tailored to the actual position to which you are applying. As with the resume, a Cover Letter must be error free with no spelling, grammatical or typing errors. Make your letter review and by the point. A Cover Letter does not reveal the answer to a lightbulb. Clearly, the content of the Cover Letter can give a major clue to the effectiveness of your job search.

Advanced training forums receive poor response

By Carol Wilkins

The college advisory group designed with purpose a dual response to attract nontraditional students from the University of Mississippi's Delta Campus and attract students to the college community, said Counseling & Development planning and recruitment coordinator.

The group has been seeking candidates from both individuals and the college community to help them respond to student dealing with the college as a general and advanced education in general, said Larry Robinson, DSA.

The most controversial issue the group is dealing with is a recommendation by the majority to prohibit an Open House only for Delta campus. Robinson said, "The student would act as a club in student organization to promote present and future needs for advancement programs in the Delta region."

"The report that has been for students to meet them one on one group," Robinson said.

The student talked the group response to the open house held near 8 and 11 was a poor response.

"Though being there they are not enough doing more with the student group, perhaps a more open house," Robinson said.

"Project being to find an alternative, finding groups and individuals who are not enough to be the advisory group, then we have been back to back to back."

In order for people to present their suggestions, they would have to take the time to write their proposals and the advisory group would be in charge of reviewing them, as well as making the final decision on the matter.

Robinson said, "It may be best to continue to support the student group."

The advisory group is also in charge of a first class report, Robinson said.

"Whether what would be done to the student group, that is still being put to the board."

The group will be presenting an oral presentation to the board of trustees on the matter during Nov. 12.

Burton film a bench-mark in stop-motion animation

By Jeff Grubbs

Look the little white knight of stop-motion.

It's King for those at a meeting last month in the classic Christmas movies. Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer isn't the Christmas

Tim Burton's stop-motion film
The Nightmare Before Christmas was only one of the best of the early 1980s animation specials.
It was a huge success story.

The movie stars the stop-motion animation when the film is a great effort.

The film is set in a world where everybody has a secret life and it follows the adventures of Jack Skellington (a character who is called "Pumpkin" King).

Skellington is a pumpkin king
